Report from Secretary of State Shows Big Drop from Last Year

Only 110 new automobiles were registered in Appleton in July as compared to 152 for the same month in 1929 according to a report from the secretary of state. Of the number of new cars last month there were 13 commercial cars or trucks and 97 pleasure or passenger cars. In July, 1929, there were 15 trucks and 137 passenger cars registered from Appleton.

In the first seven months of 1930 there were 742 new cars registered from Appleton as against 885 in the same period last year. There were 82 trucks and 659 passenger cars registered in the seven-month period this year as compared with 111 trucks and 734 passenger cars in the like period in 1929.

Figures released for other cities of about the same size as Appleton in comparison with this city's are as follows: Appleton, 110 registration for July and 742 for the first seven months; Fond du Lac, 103 for July, 798 for seven months; Green Bay, 236 for July and 1,394 for seven months; Manitowish, 54 and 653; Marinette, 24 and 246; Menasha, 34 and 198; Neenah, 50 and 392; Oshkosh, 129 and 533; Sheboygan, 115 and 574.

$400 DAMAGE CAUSED BY FIRE AT CHURCH

Fire of unknown origin caused damage estimated at $400 at St. Mary Catholic church about 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The blaze broke out in a small box containing hymn books located just behind the confessional. The fire was discovered by a passerby who sent an alarm to the fire department. The firemen worked for half an hour to put out the blaze with chemicals. Fire Chief George P. McGillan was investigating Monday to determine the cause of the fire.

The firemen also were called out about 3:30 Saturday afternoon to the home of Carl Van Dinter, 913 W. Spencer st. when a small chimney fire started. No damage resulted.

Pick Up Airmail On Fly With New Device

Airmail planes now pick up mail pouches "on the fly" in much the same manner as railroad trains. Here you see the new device in operation near Pittsburgh, as it was placed in service on the Cleveland-Pittsburgh airmail line. The picture shows the plane flying low over the pickup device just after depositing incoming mail and picking up an outgoing sack by means of a steel cable which was lowered from the plane and dragged through a slot in the ground machine. In the inset, Dr. Lytle S. Adams, Seattle dentist and inventor of the device, is shown placing the pouch in readiness for the pickup.

August Is Month When Rainbow Trout Bite

BY E. A. CLAFLIN

August is the month for rainbow trout fishing. Yes, the experienced anglers know that, but I hear some one say, the streams are all fished out—no use fishing on any more rainbows, or any other kind, for that matter. I agree that our present trout fishing by no means compares with what it once was, yet there are enough of these fine fish to still afford us fine sport, if you are in on the know.

One of the best known and formerly prolific streams is the Beaver, of Manitowish-co. In days gone by it was not at all unusual for a single angler to take from it a hundred or more trout in a day's fishing. I have done it, myself. And back in those days we used nothing but angle worms for bait, that is up to about August first. From that time on grasshoppers were plentiful, easy to pick up right along the streams and the trout always did like them. I use them now at times; not only because they are good baits, but because they are analogous to dry flies; and dry fly fishing is the acme of this wonderful sport.

The Beaver is generally supposed to have been denuded of all trout years ago. That was hardly the case. However, as the fish became scarce, the anglers sought other waters. As a result, the speckled beauties gradually came back in numbers until, once more it is possible to make a decent catch on this fine little stream.

A few miles out from Pound one comes to what is known as the "old Hamilton dam," on the north branch of the Beaver. The remains of this dam, which was originally constructed to raise a head of water to float the spring drives of logs, now forms the road across the stream. Above there a few of the old time experts cast their flies, and they get enough trout for any fair-minded sportsman.

But I started out to say something about rainbow fishing in August. After about the fifteenth of the month the Seven Mile Rapids of the Peshtigo river will furnish some good sport for the fly experts. I recently looked the stream over, as I do every season before rainbow time, and found conditions ideal. The water is low, which means the stream can be waded with ease in most parts, and that in turn means that the river can be properly covered.

From the "old farm dam" down by the mouth of Brandywine Creek to the "Horse Race" is one stretch of fine rapids; and in this fast water the rainbows gather during the months of August, preparatory to continuing their upward migration to their spawning grounds.

My best success over a number of years has come from the use of just three patterns of flies, the Montreal, Silver Doctor and the Jack Scott, in the order named. I use these flies in rather large sizes, say from number 8 to about 4. Also I have found it best to use level leaders of at least seven and a half feet length and of good test, for the fish taken will often run from two pounds up. And even a two pound rainbow trout in that fast water will create the impression that he weighs five, because of the added leverage afforded him. Live, tapered leaders will not hold them.

SELL TELLS HOW TO ELIMINATE LOSSES

Keep Young Turkeys in Movable Brood House County Agent Says

Turkey losses from Chickadee can be practically eliminated if Outagamie-co if the young birds are kept in a movable brood house and kept on clean ranges, says County Agent Gus Sell. He says that a simple plan will keep losses at a minimum.

This plan as recommended by G. E. Annin, poultry specialist of the Wisconsin college of agriculture, consists of a movable brood house kept on clean ranges, and a route kept confined about the house. A clean range is one where there has been no turkey droppings for at least two years. The plan is given in detail in Wisconsin Bulletin No. 531. Four pens are made at the colony house and the pens are allowed in but one pen at a time. As soon as the green of the range comes down in one pen, the birds are moved to the next pen. When all pens are used, the house is moved to a new location, according to the plan.

One often hears the story of a flock in the fall of the year, the results are dying because of lack of food, too much corn, and so on. This is explained, he says, by the fact. Under the old system of having turkeys range over the country, the young turkeys were scattered over the farm buildings, and during the summer where the corn is contaminated with mill dust and other eggs. Here the poultry become very fat, which in turn makes them susceptible to blackhead and other diseases, their death. If corn is scattered it will not kill poultry. When the birds are not allowed to get away the blackhead disease is controlled almost one hundred per cent, he states. Following the simple plan of sanitation given above will insure greater profits from the turkey business.

Al Smith's Influence Felt In Three Southern States

ISSUE DRAWS EYES OF REST OF COUNTRY

Prohibition Figures Largely in Tomorrow's Primary in Ohio

Washington.—(P)—The shadow of Alfred E. Smith, 1928, Democratic presidential candidate, will loom largely over three of the four state primaries to be held tomorrow.

Voters of Alabama, Arkansas, and Nebraska, will have the burning issue of two years ago brought back to them indirectly while in the fourth state, Ohio, where ballots are to be cast, prohibition is to figure largely in the vote.

Alabama Democrats are to choose a successor to Senator J. Thomas Heflin, ousted from this year's party primary because he failed to support the Democratic presidential candidate two years ago. Heflin, however, has conducted a vigorous campaign for reelection as an independent and will be the November opponent of the victor in the Democratic primary. John H. Bankhead, of Jasper, and Frederick I. Thompson, Mobile publisher, are the senatorial candidates in the primary.

The Nebraska race offered as its chief interest opposition to Senator George W. Norris, who left the Republican fold to support Smith in the campaign. However, farm relief, tariff and prohibition are numbered among the issues in the Republican contest there. Norris is opposed by W. W. Stebbins, state treasurer, and Aaron Read. The Stebbins campaign has been directed at Norris' failure to cooperate with the administration. The veteran senator carried to the voters a claim for vindication of his party.

The Democratic primary in Nebraska offers a candidate who deserted the ranks of that party to support Hoover in 1928. This is Dr. Jennie M. Callias, opposed by former Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock.

ROBINSON'S INDIVIDUAL DRY
In Arkansas, Senator Joseph T. Robinson, the Democratic leader, has conducted a strenuous campaign against Tom W. Campbell, Little Rock lawyer. Robinson has championed the cause of national prohibition in vigorous fashion in a manner that has led to general belief he sought to counteract any effect of his having shared the national ticket with Smith.

Because of little opposition to Republican candidates in Ohio has centered on the Democratic senatorial contest in which prohibition has been the leading issue. Tariff, farm relief and present economic conditions have contributed to campaign topics.

Robert J. Bulkley of Cleveland, a former representative, advocates dry law repeal, and George S. Myers of Cleveland, favors modification. The other candidates in the Democratic senate race are W. W. Durbin, former Representative John Mcweeney, of Wooster, and Charles V. Traux, once state director of agriculture. No primary opposition faces Senator Roscoe C. McCullough, the Republican incumbent, who is a dry.

ATTITUDE IN DOUBT
Montgomery, Ala.—(P)—What course will be pursued by 75,000 Democrats who have been advised to vote for the party ticket in the 1928 presidential election was the major question engaging political observers today on the eve of Alabama's biennial Democratic primary in which candidates for offices from United States senator to constable will be nominated.

At least approximately 1,000 state and county candidates have been advising voters to return to the party. Senator J. Thomas Heflin, for 21 years an office holder at the hands of the party, and his supporters have stumped the state urging voters to stay out of tomorrow's primary.

Senator Heflin is making an independent campaign for reelection having been excluded from this year's primary under a resolution of the state Democratic committee barring as candidates those persons who failed to support the party's presidential ticket in 1928.

In 1928, Herbert Hoover received 157,765 votes and Alfred E. Smith, Democratic presidential nominee, received 127,767, while four years previously the Republican ticket mustered 45,995 votes to more than 150,000 for the Democratic ticket.

FINE KAUKAUNA MAN FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING
Herman Halpapp, Kaukauna, pleaded guilty to a charge of drunken driving when arraigned in municipal court at Green Bay Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

Halpapp was fined $150 and costs. He was sent to jail until the fine can be raised.

Halpapp was arrested on Highway 41 south of De Pere Sunday night when his car swerved and he lost control of the running board and fender. Halpapp was riding with George Wilson, also of Kaukauna.

BURGLAR GETS $10 AT FRUIT COMPANY OFFICE
Burglars entered the office of the Fruit Brothers Fruit company, 222 W. College, sometime between 6:30 Saturday night and 7 o'clock Sunday night and escaped with about $10 in small change, which was found from a drawer. The burglars also ransacked the office, but took nothing else. Entrance was gained by breaking a cellar window in the rear of the store. After entering the basement the burglar cut a panel out of the door leading to the third floor and opened the door from the inside.

SHERWOOD MOTORISTS INJURED WHEN BULLET SHATTERS WINDSHIELD

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Reininger, Sherwood, were cut by splintered glass Sunday afternoon when a rifle shot shattered the windshield of their car while they were driving along the military road three miles north of Sherwood near the Timm farm.

The Reiningers, driving with their four children, were approaching the Timm farm where a flock of tame young turkeys were feeding in the woods, when the bullet hit their car. It is believed the shot was fired by someone in the woods shooting at the turkeys.

EXPECT RECORD CROWD AT BAND CONCERT TUESDAY

Two Solos and Community Singing Will Feature Weekly Program

Another record crowd is expected at Pierce park Tuesday evening to hear the weekly concert by the 120th Field Artillery band. The programs have been drawing larger crowds each week during the summer, and with two solos and community singing planned for the coming program, the largest crowd of the season is expected.

On Tuesday's program will be a vocal solo by Miss Florence Roate, the number to be "Carmena." An instrumental solo, by Ralph Wilpolt, trombone player, also is scheduled. He will play "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep."

A grand descriptive fantasia, "Colombus," will open the evening's program. The number opens with the fan fare incidentally announcing the birth of Christopher Columbus.

The program is followed by a torchlight dance. The sorrow of departure is next portrayed after which the band carries its audience through the various stages of the explorer's voyage, including the parting salute, merriment of sailors, the storm scene, melancholy, mutiny and the discovery of the new continent.

Community singing also will feature the evening's program, choruses for four songs having been mimeographed and made ready for distribution to the audience. The feature was introduced a few weeks ago and immediately proved popular.

The evening program follows: Grand Descriptive Fantasia "Colombus" solo—Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep—Laurendau.

Ralph Wilpolt, soloist—The Glow Worm—Soloist—Lincke Characteristic—"The Dance of the Serpents"—Baccalari Intermission

Selection "The Princess Pat"—Victor Herbert Vocal solo—"Carmena"—Wilson Florence Roate, soprano

March Française "Parade of the Stars"—Spangled Banner—Lake Star Spangled Banner

Edward F. Mumm, director, has requested that cars be not moved on the park grounds during the concert, because it detracts from the bands' effort and is annoying to the crowd. If cars are to be moved, he said, they should be moved between 8 o'clock.

MERCURY WILL RISE AGAIN, REPORT SAYS
Now that Appleton and the Fox River valley have had a taste of early fall weather, and many folks haven't enjoyed it, especially those who still want to do some swimming and spend the remainder of the month out of the weather, a forecast for tonight is slightly warmer, and for Tuesday he reports partly cloudy skies and an other rise in the mercury.

At noon Monday the mercury was reported hovering near the 61 mark. The highest temperature Sunday was 70, a change from the 94 to 96 degree temperatures of a few days ago. The lowest mark Sunday night was 52.

BOY HIT BY CAR AT HORTONVILLE CORNER
At 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon, as Neo Poole, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Poole, was going to Hortonville on his bicycle, he collided with a car driven by Roy Sternick. The accident occurred at the corner of Nye and Lincoln at Hortonville where a high hedge or blue bushes obstructed the view of the road.

Neo was thrown from his bicycle along the running board of Sternick's car, sustaining a deep gash on the left side of his head, and cuts and bruises. He was unconscious for some time. Neo will not be out of danger for some days. The bicycle was demolished. After the accident a group of neighbors cleared away the hedge in order to forestall future accidents at the corner.

Where President Hoover Will Spend His Vacation

Here are scenes and figures that will greet President Hoover when he establishes the summer White House in Glacier National Park, in north-west Montana, this year. An "official welcome" to the vacationing Chief Executive will be extended by Two Guns White Cafe, upper left, the son of the last recognized chief of the Blackfoot Indians. There'll be fishing galore, and Gus Thompson, right, a former major league baseball pitcher, has been chosen to guide the angling President among the streams and lakes of the great park. Below you see the Mammoth Glacier Park Log Hotel, at the eastern gateway to the park, where the President and his party will detain for the thirteen-mile motor trip to Two Medicine Chalets on Two Medicine Lake. Upper center is a typical mountain-and-lake scene at the Hoover vacation site.

PRIMARY IN TEXAS PROVES DEMOCRATS REGAINING UNITY

G. O. P. Meanwhile, Is Having Troubles Despite 1928 Victory

Washington.—Miss Democracy is a mean gal when she is crossed, but Mr. G. O. P. has a traditionally tough skin.

All the bad little boys who played truant in 1928 are now taking their spankings in 1930 as fast as Miss Democracy can get around to them. The other party is more likely to let bygones be bygones. It seems strange but rather true that the Democrats got all disorganized in the presidential campaign and lost, only to emerge now in better marching order than ever, whereas the Republicans won the election and now seem to be all mixed up what with western progressivism, depression, prohibition and things. There are plenty of disillusioned Democrats, however, willing to admit that this doesn't mean a thing insofar as 1932 is concerned.

THE SOUTH IS STILL SOLID
Anyway, the Hoovercrats of 1928 have all been getting it in the neck and it has been definitely proved that the south is still Democracy's stronghold. It wasn't that the south loved Hoover; she just hated Al Smith and the pope.

Bishop Cannon of Virginia, Senator Burton of Nevada, and Senator Simmons of North Carolina, Tom Love in Texas and errant Hoovercrats in two or three other states have all been finding that out.

The Republicans have only one honest-to-goodness bolter to punish in this year's primaries and election if they can—Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska. But if they like, they can punish several progressive senators and other Republicans who have harassed Mr. Hoover since his inauguration. They might start on Borah of Idaho, who has been almost consistently irregular in the Senate since he wound up his famous speaking campaign for Hoover in '28, and is going on the stump against the farm plan. In the state convention Aug. 28, they won't. They have a chance to lick him.

Line of Oklahoma in the July 29th primary for his persistent antagonism to the administration, but they didn't. Nor did they punish McMaster in South Dakota nor will they, in all probability, spank the rather irregular Mr. Coutsens in Michigan on Sept. 1.

Norris presumably will not be back in Nebraska. If he is it will not be because he alienated his political supporters by declaring for Smith, but because he suffers from vengeance inspired in the hearts of strong dry voters and those with religious prejudices. The conservative, regular politicians were always against him anyway.

There's a bolter in Nebraska's Democratic senatorial primary, also—Miss Jennie M. Callias, who is 1928's national committee near in line of office she came out for Hoover. Miss Callias will be spanked in the primary and former Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock, who didn't desert the ticket, will be the winner.

The old regular Democratic leaders never really lost their hold in the Democratic states which voted for Hoover. The first demonstration that the Hoovercrats had had their very brief day came last year when Bishop Cannon and the anti-Smith faction put up their own man against the regular Democratic candidate for governor and were overwhelmingly defeated.

Alabama managed to vote for Smith, but Heflin paid part of the price for his desertion when the state machine refused to let him run again as a Democrat. He probably will pay the rest of the price in 1932 when he stands for reelection as an independent.

In North Carolina Simmons repudiated the 1928 national ticket and last June the politicians of the state united behind Joseph W. D. to massacre him when he ran.

Calls Aviation Experts To Probe Chicago Tragedy

Chicago.—(P)—An Inquiry Into Chicago's most unusual airplane accident has been opened with the prospect that the city's air ordinance may be changed.

Coroner Herman N. Bundesen and Major Reed Laws, deputy coroner in charge of aviation cases, have summoned a jury of aviation and airplane technicians to investigate the deaths of two young women and a pilot who were killed late Saturday when a cabin monoplane fell into a northside gas tank.

The young women, sisters, were Mary Laws, 24, and Eugenia Laws, 22. The pilot, whom the sisters engaged for a ride over the city, was Orville Suchy.

Soon after the plane left the municipal airport, a severe electrical storm broke. The plane was wallied in by dark clouds and lightning. Witnesses said after a severe crack of lightning, the wings of the ship collapsed and it plunged from a height of 1,000 feet into a storage tank of the People's Gas, Light and Coke Co.

The impact cleaved the steel roof and bottom of the gas chamber and the plane dived into a 40-foot reservoir beneath, filled with water. The ship finally rested in the murk at the base of the tank. Early Sunday a diver aided by police recovered the bodies.

All of the known witnesses have been summoned to appear today at the inquiry. Coroner Bundesen indicated that change in the air ordinance regulating flights over the city would be sought.

There was 700,000 cubic feet of gas in the tank but the plane's crash was so rapid, gas company officials said, that there was not time for the plane's ignition to explode the gas.

WANTS HOLDING FIRMS UNDER STATE CONTROL
Pulaski.—(P)—Legislation should be enacted making holding companies that hold bank stock come under the supervision and control of the commissioner of banking. Attorney General John Reynolds said in a campaign speech on chain banks here today.

The commissioner of banking does not have control now of the Wisconsin Bankshares corporation, he said. "They are not compelled to file a list of their share holders with the commissioner of banking and can put up their stock as collateral security in any of their chain banks, but if I am the owner of bank stock in a bank I can not put it up as collateral in my own bank."

Challenging the statement of a Madison newspaper that "there wasn't much brains in the majority of the assemblymen" and that "Major Reis, in two legislative sessions, furnished almost exclusively the brains of the radical movement," Reynolds said he would like to ask "why was not legislation enacted to curb banks if Mr. Reis has more brains than LaFollette, Huber or Reynolds."

STUDY HELPS BREAK PRISON LONELINESS
Madison.—(P)—Concessions offered to convicts in the Wisconsin state prison at Waupun by the University of Wisconsin division have done much to break the loneliness and despair of the cell. Chester Allen, director of field organization, for the extension division, said in a radio address here today. He spoke over WEA, university station. In one of the series on crime the state is doing to rehabilitate its wards.

"By means of these services over 350 inmates have been able to remove the bitterness of spirit and to break the monotony of the long hours, by preparing themselves for living, after their release, in the society that imperished them," Mr. Allen said.

He explained that the extension division courses break the monotony of the prisoners' free period, which extends from 5 o'clock each afternoon until 10 p. m.

Columbia's Power May Reclaim Immense Area

Seattle, Wash.—(P)—The job of harnessing the mighty Columbia river for agriculture and industry has been begun by army engineers.

More than 11,000,000 horsepower of electrical energy may be produced by a maximum development of this largest river in the far west and its tributaries, engineers have determined after a year's survey.

Hand in hand with the hydroelectric exploitation is a reclamation project involving millions of acres of semi-arid farm land in the river's basin.

Ultimate development of the Columbia also will open a new waterway 750 miles long from the river's mouth to the Canadian border.

Maj. John S. Butler, army district engineer at Seattle, has directed study of the river which drains territory equal to more than one-fourth of the nation's area.

Government engineers estimate ultimate development of the river and its tributaries will involve an investment of $500,000,000.

Markets for the power and additional crops to be created by development of the stream have been studied, in addition to power and navigation sites, needs of irrigation and other related subjects.

Construction of the first big power project on the Columbia already has begun—a $12,000,000 hydroelectric plant at Rock Island, near Wenatchee. There provision will be made for locks to carry freight boats of the future around the dam.

Two plans for reclamation of semi-arid lands of the Columbia river basin, which covers 1,533,000 acres, have been suggested.

One calls for a dam across the Columbia at the head of Grand Coulee, where glacial action once turned the Columbia from its old course into an entirely new channel.

By this plan the Columbia's old bed, now 600 feet above the river level at the point of diversion, would be used as a canal and storage basin. A power plant at this point would pump water to the Grand Coulee, whence it would be drawn by gravity to irrigate farm lands.

The second plan contemplates taking water from the Clark Fork river at Albany Falls, Idaho, conducting it through a series of canals, lakes and other water courses for 135 miles and distributing it by gravity over the area to be reclaimed.

Navigation of the Columbia and one of its principal tributaries, the Snake, already has figured in the movement of crops from the grain belt of Washington, Idaho and Oregon. Locks were built in the river some years ago.

A reduction in railroad rates, however, later wiped out the river freighting, but efforts to revive it are being made.

KOHLER OPENS CAMPAIGN FOR REELECTION TONIGHT
Milwaukee.—(P)—Gov. Walter J. Kohler tonight will officially open his campaign for reelection on the Conservative Republican ticket with an address at the Milwaukee auditorium.

Harry Dahl, LaCrosse, candidate for lieutenant governor, Michael Eberlein, Shawano, candidate for attorney general, William L. Pieplow, Milwaukee, candidate for secretary of state, and Edward J. Samp, Madison, candidate for state treasurer, will give five-minute speeches prior to the governor's address.

The governor's opening campaign speech will be broadcast by WTMJ and WISN from 8 to 9 o'clock (C. S. T.) Every county in the state is expected to send delegations to the meeting.

Governor Kohler is beginning his campaign almost a month later than that of his opponent, Phil LaFollette, seeking the office on the Progressive Republican ticket.

BLIND YOUTH BUILDS OWN RADIO OUTFITS
Atlanta.—(P)—Clifford Withers, 18, blind since babyhood, is going to be a scientist with the help of radio.

Young Withers has made good progress in school, and was selected as Georgia's alternate representative in the Thomas A. Edison scholarship contest.

Early in life Clifford became interested in things scientific, especially radio, and has been licensed as an amateur operator for two years. He builds his own sending and receiving apparatus.

He is interested in chemistry and likes to make experiments in the laboratory. Graduating from an Atlanta preparatory school this year, he ranked high in his classes, and will enter Georgia School of Technology next fall.

Columbia's Power May Reclaim Immense Area

Seattle, Wash.—(P)—The job of harnessing the mighty Columbia river for agriculture and industry has been begun by army engineers.

More than 11,000,000 horsepower of electrical energy may be produced by a maximum development of this largest river in the far west and its tributaries, engineers have determined after a year's survey.

Hand in hand with the hydroelectric exploitation is a reclamation project involving millions of acres of semi-arid farm land in the river's basin.

Ultimate development of the Columbia also will open a new waterway 750 miles long from the river's mouth to the Canadian border.

Maj. John S. Butler, army district engineer at Seattle, has directed study of the river which drains territory equal to more than one-fourth of the nation's area.

Government engineers estimate ultimate development of the river and its tributaries will involve an investment of $500,000,000.

Markets for the power and additional crops to be created by development of the stream have been studied, in addition to power and navigation sites, needs of irrigation and other related subjects.

Construction of the first big power project on the Columbia already has begun—a $12,000,000 hydroelectric plant at Rock Island, near Wenatchee. There provision will be made for locks to carry freight boats of the future around the dam.

Two plans for reclamation of semi-arid lands of the Columbia river basin, which covers 1,533,000 acres, have been suggested.

One calls for a dam across the Columbia at the head of Grand Coulee, where glacial action once turned the Columbia from its old course into an entirely new channel.

By this plan the Columbia's old bed, now 600 feet above the river level at the point of diversion, would be used as a canal and storage basin. A power plant at this point would pump water to the Grand Coulee, whence it would be drawn by gravity to irrigate farm lands.

The second plan contemplates taking water from the Clark Fork river at Albany Falls, Idaho, conducting it through a series of canals, lakes and other water courses for 135 miles and distributing it by gravity over the area to be reclaimed.

Navigation of the Columbia and one of its principal tributaries, the Snake, already has figured in the movement of crops from the grain belt of Washington, Idaho and Oregon. Locks were built in the river some years ago.

A reduction in railroad rates, however, later wiped out the river freighting, but efforts to revive it are being made.

KOHLER OPENS CAMPAIGN FOR REELECTION TONIGHT
Milwaukee.—(P)—Gov. Walter J. Kohler tonight will officially open his campaign for reelection on the Conservative Republican ticket with an address at the Milwaukee auditorium.

Harry Dahl, LaCrosse, candidate for lieutenant governor, Michael Eberlein, Shawano, candidate for attorney general, William L. Pieplow, Milwaukee, candidate for secretary of state, and Edward J. Samp, Madison, candidate for state treasurer, will give five-minute speeches prior to the governor's address.

The governor's opening campaign speech will be broadcast by WTMJ and WISN from 8 to 9 o'clock (C. S. T.) Every county in the state is expected to send delegations to the meeting.

Governor Kohler is beginning his campaign almost a month later than that of his opponent, Phil LaFollette, seeking the office on the Progressive Republican ticket.

BLIND YOUTH BUILDS OWN RADIO OUTFITS
Atlanta.—(P)—Clifford Withers, 18, blind since babyhood, is going to be a scientist with the help of radio.

CLINTONVILLE MAN IS JAILED AFTER ASSAULT WITH GUN
Frank Raasch, 38, Clintonville, is being held in Shawano-co jail without charge while authorities are investigating alleged gun play at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Romberg, town of Pella, near the Waupaca-co-Shawano-co line about 9 o'clock Sunday morning.

Raasch, it is claimed, came to the Romberg home, opened the door of the house and fired a shot at Mrs. Romberg with a .32 caliber pistol. He missed and was disarmed by Lester Schwandt, a brother of Mrs. Romberg, who was sitting near the doorway and who knocked the man down.

Waupaca-co authorities were first called in on the case but when it was found the incident happened in Shawano-co, Sheriff Louis Hofman of the latter county was called.

Authorities reported that Raasch was a suitor of Mrs. Romberg until her marriage 14 months ago.

A charge probably may be preferred against Raasch after the Romberg family and Lester Schwandt are questioned.

RADIO STATIONS PREPARE BATTLE FOR MORE POWER

Federal Commission Opens
Hearing on Matter on Sept.

BY ROBERT MACK
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press
Washington (CPA)—Radio's battle of the giants takes place next month with the 55 leading broadcasting stations of the country pitted against one another and against the federal radio authorities.

Super-power for broadcasting stations, which would permit them to serve great sweeps of territory, is the issue, with the commission to determine whether it is the best interests of the listeners to have more than a handful of stations jolling the ether with booming power.
Nine stations now are licensed for 50,000 watts, with a half-dozen others authorized to build stations of this output.

The commission has set Sept. 15 as the day for the opening of a hearing at which the entire question of high power will be considered. Thus far 18 stations in every section of the country have been commanded to appear at this hearing, to present reasons for their applications to use the maximum allowable power of 50, 000 watts.

But all other stations now using authorized to use or eligible to use this maximum power, by virtue of their operating on cleared channels, have been invited to participate in the discussions.

STARTS BATTLE ROYAL

The high power spree was precipitated by the recent order of the commission restricting the number of cleared channels which would be allowed to carry stations of the maximum power. If ruled that only 20 of the 49 channels thus set aside for high power, with the objective of serving remote listeners, would be permitted to have 50,000 watt stations. As a result, station on cleared channels are staging a battle royal for the few remaining assignments.

Because some of the stations now applying unquestionably will claim they are better qualified to use the maximum power than stations already licensed for it, the commission has decided to invite all stations in the cleared channel category to participate in the hearings. Besides those stations which have been scheduled for the hearings, there are about a half dozen other 50,000 watt applications pending which have not yet been designated for hearing.
This will probably be done later.

The 18 stations which have been commanded to be prepared to present evidence on Sept. 15 are: WOFB, Newark, N. J.; WYBZ, Springfield, Mass.; WCAU, Philadelphia; WFLA,
Louisville, Ky.; WBT, Charlotte; KJH, Los Angeles; WMAQ and KXW, Chicago; WHAM, Rochester; WRVA, Richmond; WAPL, Birmingham; WSM, Nashville; WSB, Atlanta; WOFL, Chicago; KTNT, Muscatine, Ia.; KGO, Oakland, Calif., and WHO and WOC, Des Moines, Iowa.

DROUGHT AFFECTS WESTERN BUSINESS

Banks That Loaned Money to Farmers in Bad Situation Now

Special Dispatch to Post-Crescent
Kansas City, Mo. (CPA)—Overshadowing every other factor in the business situation of the middle west is the serious effect of the long-
peratures, surpassing in its damage any similar condition in a score of years.

Coming on top of the low price level for grain and farmstead by-products, it has brought a problem not alone to the producer, but to his creditors. Baking since the first of July, with only local showers, have caused a loss to farmers through their livestock operations that, while less spectacular than the wheat situation, has been in many ways more serious.

The cattleman has borrowed from his bank to finance a feeding process; he has lost not only his original investment, but also added sums through the losses involved in the low market of the spring and summer. The banks have been affected much as in the deflation period of 1921, though not in so great a percentage.

Their effort to carry their customers of this class places on them a burden which will entail a long experience and in many instances embarrass the smaller institutions that have been heavily involved in this class of loans.

While early autumn rains will help the rough feed condition, the combination of the drought and the high price will make it difficult for the average farmer to engage in what has been his winter occupation. All through Iowa, Missouri, eastern Nebraska and eastern Kansas, banks are in no position to aid in financing this activity, at least until there is more selling of wheat. It is believed by the wheat farmers that the wheat price will improve because of the corn situation. Many are already using wheat for feed as it is cheaper than corn.

BIG TELEPHONE ORDER PLACED IN NEW YORK

Special Dispatch to Post-Crescent
New York (CPA)—Ordering telephones for the new Waldorf-Astoria here, here is like setting out to equip a city of 25,000 with telephone service.

Lucius Boon, president of the new Waldorf-Astoria, announced today that the largest hotel telephone order ever placed has just been given to the New York Telephone company. The Waldorf telephone exchange personnel will number approximately 105 employees and it is estimated the hotel's switchboards will handle ten to twelve million calls annually. The hotel's telephone bill will be around $200,000 a year.

already been harvested and it is estimated that in the northern agricultural states where wheat has not yet been gathered the shortage due to drought conditions may not exceed 17,000,000 or 18,000,000 bushels, which, of course, is a negligible amount when the total over-production is considered.

NO NATIONAL DISASTER

From the government point of view, however, interest is naturally just as deep no matter how small is the relative number of individuals affected. Relief plans are under way with the full authority and power of the federal as well as state governments. But anything like a major disaster of national proportions is not by any means involved in the damage done thus far. In fact, some crops are likely to be aided in the prices they obtain, which may mean that some sections of the country will benefit by the drought in other sections.

There is, on the other hand, no tendency in Washington to minimize the effects of the drought upon those who are directly concerned in certain states, but a fear is expressed that because of the unusual character of the "hot weather" and exaggerated impression of the whole drought situation may be produced on the minds of those who are unfamiliar with the character of the weather as well as the over-chargeability of agriculture.

THE MOTHERS RETURN

The Gold Star mothers are coming home again.

They are leaving the slim green graves across the sea, where red poppies blow in the careless breeze, and small white crosses keep lonely vigil.

They are watching the coast of France blur into a blue-gray haze, as the low hills disappear, and the fishing boats with their colored sails, grown mellow from many winds and rains, slip into the harbor.

Some of the mothers stand on the deck until the cool wet winds have blown the darkness everywhere and a light or two is shining far, far back where a boat or two goes home.

They have not said goodbye to warriors, though they have kept their trust as soldiers' mothers. They have made their long farewells to the little boys they used to know. Touse-headed, freckle-faced youngsters who licked the frosting bowl, banged the door, and liked bread and butter and jelly.

Sons do not grow up to their mothers. They are always little boys with a cut that needs bandaging or a baseball that has ripped and must be mended. Because of this it has made it all the harder for the Gold Star mothers to leave the graves behind.

It has been hard for them to visualize long lines of marching men, steel helmets glistening in the sun, swinging down the brave white roads of France, chanting of a maid in Armentieres, whistling to keep up their courage. They are still a little afraid of those khaki clad men who stood for the war that took their boys away.

Not many of the women who made their pilgrimages to the cemeteries together knew one another before the journey started. Yet there was a strange understanding among them. Their memories were so much alike. Their suffering had blown from the same hot fields of battle. The starlight that filtered through the trees, across the graves, brought the same benediction.

The sound of taps charged to lullaby strains, from long, long ago, to all of them.

So they are coming back again, these mothers whom our government so generously and graciously sent to visit the graves of their soldier sons. They are coming back realizing that their individual sorrows are only part of the community of suffering which all must share. They will not feel so lonely now, because they know the mothers of the boys who sleep in the graves that are scattered here and there.

The cemeteries will not be strange places in Flanders, for they will know that other boys, just like their boys, sleep quietly around as summer slips into autumn and winter comes again.

They have learned, too, that bereavement is a world-wide word. The sympathy and understanding of people who speak a foreign tongue has needed no interpreter to assist in its expression.

So, with a pressed poppy from a Flanders grave, and another box of memories stored away with their treasures, the Gold Star mother are coming home.

SHE HAD COURAGE, ANYWAY

This younger generation often gets wild and makes some deplorable slips in conduct; but it seems, at all events, to be able to take its medicine without whining.

A society girl in Richmond, Va., disappeared from home recently. Her parents feared she had been kidnapped, and police hunted for her. Finally she was found, sharing an apartment in a nearby city with a married man. She was brought back home and the man was taken to jail.

Now it would have been easy for this young woman to have saved her face by adopting the kidnapping story. But she refused to do it. Instead she issued a signed statement to a newspaper, explaining that she had gone of her own free will, and that the man was no more to blame than she was.

You may deplore her action in going on this expedition all you wish; but you must admit that she at least displayed plenty of courage when the show-down came.

BORING OURSELVES

There are some things that are beyond human understanding. How a healthy, normal man could seclude himself on a tiny island for 22 years is one of them. Most of us have an urge, now and then, to escape from our cares. To go adventuring, gathering the rag-tag ends of romance, and stretching our souls. But we do it merely because we need a tonic to strengthen our exhilaration for the tasks and the human contacts that make our lives. Life goes stale if it does not give us a problem or two to solve. But now comes the story of Charles Hardenberg, who is living a hermit's life on Little Watts Island, no larger than an average city lot, in Chesapeake Bay. He grew tired of the world, so he ran away. He had been a successful lawyer, owner of one of the largest libraries in New Jersey. But he did not take a single book with him. He seldom reads a newspaper. He has all the time in the world, but he never troubles to make a garden. He does not live. He exists.

Across the bay the world has changed since he left it. Tall buildings have gone skyward. Automobiles have gained speed. Airships have winged their way close to the stars, and men have gone down to the sea in ships in more than one war. Hardenberg has heard the faint ring of steel, the echo of martial music, and let them drift past his island home. Hardenberg is bored. Small wonder, we would say. There is no one to whom he can boast if he catches a 10-pound fish. Therefore he does not care what he pulls in. He isn't affected by the proposed two-and-one-half cent postage rate. He does not care who is up and who is down in the Wall street game of see-saw. He has no inducement to see how long he can sit in a tree, for nobody would know it anyway. He probably does not know that Lindbergh has a son. The light of the stars and the songs of the wind have lost their magic for him. He has seen them too unbrokenly, without a background of appreciation. And he has seen them alone. He needs companionship, interests, a challenge to spur him on. Nearly every accomplishment in life has come because someone wanted to prove his worth to others.

We were meant to live in groups and work in groups. In nomadic days, when shepherds took their flocks to pastures where clear streams were flowing, they joined caravans. Human contact made life worth while. It made the joy of accomplishment sweeter. No wonder the hermit can find small pleasure in his lonely games of solitaire. It isn't fun to beat yourself. It is a queer mind which imposes on itself a solitude which, with almost no other exception, would be considered a punishment. A happy man does not run away from life. He stays on the job. He realizes that he is going to be the same wherever he is. Therefore, he tried to cultivate a place of no trespassing in his heart where he may go for relaxation. Most of us would bore ourselves too quickly, anyway, if we withdrew from the world. Hardenberg does not seem to be getting a great deal of enjoyment out of this experiment, either. Perhaps that is his trouble.

STEAM NAVIGATION

On August 11, 1807, Robert Fulton won recognition as the first man to make steam navigation commercially successful when he sailed his steamboat, The Clermont, up the Hudson river from New York to Albany, a journey of 150 miles.

In the presence of thousands of astonished spectators, the Clermont started on its epochal trip, making an average speed of five miles an hour, which was considered a great achievement. It took 32 hours to reach Albany.

When Fulton first proposed the idea of steam navigation he met with rebuke on all sides. As he himself said: "When I was building my first steamer in New York the work was viewed by the public either with carelessness or contempt, as a useless scheme. My friends, indeed, were civil, but they were shy. As I had occasion to pass daily to and from the building yard while my boat was in progress, I often loitered unknown near idle groups of strangers, and heard them scoff and sneer and ridicule. . . . My work was always spoken of as Fulton's Folly."

Though he had great success in the construction of steamboats, various lawsuits in which he was engaged in reference to the use of some of his patents, prevented him from ever becoming wealthy.

THE ODOR OF SANATIVITY
Odorless salve has to be dangled good to gain any great popularity. Medicine without a terrible taste must be potent and no mistake to satisfy grandma. Every physician and every pharmacist knows the importance of the color of the coating of the pill or the tint of the liquid in the vial if the contents happen to be that of odor and insipid of taste.

The odor of sanctity, now somewhat passe, was composed of equal parts of filth and had ventilation with just a dash of incense. Now, always some of the people are willing to concede sanctity without the nose test, and the incense is being more largely diverted to other purposes, mainly the attempt to cover the unpleasant odor of uncleanness. This use of incense is known to the laity as sanitary precaution. The odor of sanctity is composed of the same ingredients as was formerly blended in the odor of sanctity only in different proportions, that is, slightly less filth and bad air and much more incense.

A school superintendent asks what cheap, efficient disinfectant or deodorant I can recommend for use in school toilets.

There is no more reason for using disinfectants or deodorants in school toilets or in laboratories on trains or in railway stations or in reding rooms in hotels or restaurants or in comfort stations provided by municipalities than there is for using them in the toilet or bathroom at home.

Where plumbing facilities or provisions for cleanliness are inadequate a "nuisance" will arise—a "nuisance," in the popular sense, being an offense to the senses. It is a short sighted policy to attempt to disguise such a nuisance by staging a quickie battle of smells. You can't remedy a trouble by making the odor arising from it or by superimposing a more powerful odor upon it.

In this matter it isn't the mere offense to the senses, but the peril to health that concerns the sanitation. I repeat there is no more peril to health involved in toilets or lavatories that accommodate the public at large than there is in such facilities in the private home.

The only good reason for using a disinfectant in a toilet is to prevent possible pollution of sources of water supply by sewage. But no sanitarian advocates the use of such disinfectants in the private home for such purpose; and I maintain that no competent sanitarian can advocate their use for such purpose in any public toilet.

A theory which I think, actuates the federal public health authorities in making rules governing the care of toilets on trains, is that now and then a traveler is a typhoid carrier and hence a menace to be guarded against. But after all it is rather silly to guard against such a menace merely during a train ride and when he arrives at his destination virtually bid him sow his pestilence where he lists. Nor can you restrain his innocent yet nefarious activities by subjecting him to a kind of deadly fumigation in the station rest room and then allowing him to share the use of the lavatory in your office.

Adequate plumbing installations and unsanitary use of water and soap and towels in these places will make them at least as unclean as the private bathrooms in our homes.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY RICHARD MASSOCK

New York—Remember when the town hand used to play on Friday nights in Wabash park and you sat on a soap box in front of Billy Johnson's store and watched the girls stroll by in pairs, their arms locked about each other's waists as they giggled in the soft summer night?

Or didn't you have that small town experience? If you did not, you could get an idea what it was like right here in New York, in Central park mall, or at the Lewisohn stadium, although the latter is a little more highbrow, a glorified bandstand.

Perhaps the later should be taken up first, because it is New York's major seat of music on the hot nights.

There the Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra plays nightly under the baton of Willem von Hoogstraten, the Dutch conductor. Plays programs as distinguished as those of the winter season, when society, now at Newport and Bar Harbor, goes to hear it in Carnegie hall.

Crencian columns in the background of the amphitheater, rows and rows of silent people listening to their Brahms or Beethoven or Tchaikovsky form a scene of imposing beauty.

The stadium is cut off from the loud heart of the city, uptown, where shirtless apartment dwellers can tilt chairs back on the roofs and listen to the faint chords of a difficult overture.

For it is the more humble New Yorkers who enjoy these concerts, paid for in the main by philanthropists.

A couple the other night had an extra dollar ticket. Arriving at the stadium, they asked the driver of their taxi if he should like to listen to the music.

"You bet," he said gratefully. "Just wait till I find some place to park me cab."

The cab parked, he returned and after the concert took the couple back home, refusing to accept money for the ride.

The concerts for the tired masses, however, are those of the Goldman band in the mall, which are free.

The audience sits on the hard benches. Children sleep in the laps of their parents. Couples, holding hands, call for encore after encore. They all love it.

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON

BY HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington—You're probably heard his voice over the radio only recently—Don Alejandro Padilla y Bell, Spain's ambassador to the United States.

Twice has he spoken over the air lately. Once he talked on the tariff bill and his remarks echoed on the floor of the United States senate. Again he was before the microphone in a radio-wide hookup to present Infante Alfonso de Orleans, cousin of the King of Spain.

This grave, courtly Spanish don, fast growing bald, who wears a mustache that reminds one of King Alfonso, probably is one of the most popular diplomats resident in Washington.

The second Spanish ambassador to this country, Senor Padilla first presented his credentials to the President of the United States in the autumn of 1916.

Spain's ambassador to Washington holds a unique position in diplomatic circles of Latin America, which still considers Spain as the mother country, has envoys here. And it has been the custom for them to pay special homage to the Spanish representative accredited to Washington.

That Ambassador Padilla has accumulated and centralized this devotion is evidenced by the way republics of North and South America participate in the Iberian exposition now being held in Seville and Barcelona. Amiable, possessed with an almost unlimited knowledge of Spanish art and curious and himself an enthusiastic collector of pipes, Ambassador Padilla enjoys a wide personal popularity in the capital.

The Spanish embassy on Sixteenth street, the first permanent diplomatic home which Spain has owned in the 140-odd years of her friendly relations with this country, was purchased by him and a great part of it furnished by him personally.

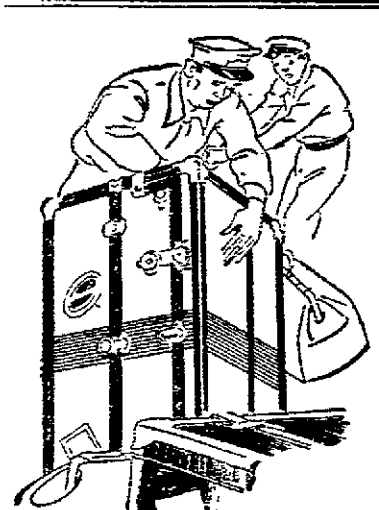

Personal treasures which have come down through the years in both the Padilla and Satrustegui (Senora Padilla) families are to be found there.

The three Padilla children also play a prominent part in the social life of the capital.

Young Ramon, the son, is following in his father's footsteps. He came to Washington as an attaché on his father's staff, but soon returned to Madrid where he was given his diplomatic spurs. Now he is back with his father as second secretary of the embassy.

Don Ramon, a quiet, modest young man, is a bachelor. He is an excellent dancer, handles the sword with skill and entertains with studio tests and exhibitions in his bachelor quarters.

The two daughters, Senoritas Rosa and Maria, are typical of the popular conception of the dark-eyed, vivacious senoritas of Spain.

INDIANS OPPOSE CREATING PARK IN RESERVATION

Tribe Spokesman Says Utility Proposal Is More Attractive

When Harlan P. Kelsey, collaborator of the National Park service, arrived at Keshena in the near future to make the preliminary survey of the region with the view of determining its possibilities as a national park he will meet with the opposition of the Menominee tribe.

A general council meeting of the tribe Saturday at Keshena at which 200 Indians were present, voiced unalterable opposition to the proposal to make a park out of the reservation unless the government would agree to the price which the utilities are willing to pay for power rights to the Wolf river. Ralph Freidenberg, spokesman for the tribe, said he believed it would be impossible for the government to meet the utility offer of $150,000 per year for 50 years when the land again is to revert to the Indians.

A preliminary survey of the Wolf river on the reservation has been made by the Insull utility company of Chicago and the offer outlined by Freidenberg is said to have been the proposal advanced by the company to the Indians.

Sportsmen throughout Wisconsin object to capitalizing the Wolf river claiming it will despoil the natural beauties of the region which annually attract thousands of tourists to the district. At the last session of congress a bill was introduced by Congressman George J. Schneider of Appleton which would have made the region a national park.

Although the bill did not pass, the national park bureau is sending Mr. Kelsey here to make a survey of the proposed park area. He is expected to come to Appleton first to discuss the matter with Congressman Schneider and other interested sportsmen in this vicinity.

Another resolution pointing out that the law prohibits the cutting of more than 20,000,000 feet of timber on the reservation annually and does not make the cutting of that quantity mandatory and expressing the sentiment of the tribe that the quantity of timber to be cut on the reservation yearly be reduced to 10,000,000 feet was unanimously adopted.

It was explained that the resolution was offered after carefully considering the prices of lumber, the past history of the timber operations, the probable future value of the timber, the interest of conservation and to assure a perpetuation of the Menominee timber.

A third resolution adopted by the council proposed a partial allotment of the reservation to tribe members; that Menominees employed in the milling operations be allowed to purchase homes in the village of Neopit on the installment plan and that further building of houses for rent be discontinued. The council was presided over by Charles G. Gaither, chairman of the advisory council of the tribe.

WOMEN FOUND IN DRAFTSMEN'S WORK

Niece of Late Chief Justice Taft Draws Plans for Skyscraper

Copyright, 1930, By Cons. Press.

New York —(CPA)— It may surprise many people to learn, when they gaze admiringly on the huge masses of steel and stone that are Manhattan's skyscrapers, that women have had a hand in building them, and that in almost every important architect's office in New York women are being employed as draftsmen, and are working on skyscrapers as well as on suburban homes.

Attention was called to the number of women employed in the most masculine of the arts in Manhattan, when it was learned today that Miss Eleanor Herron of Cincinnati, niece of the late Chief Justice Taft, is at present engaged in work on the new fifty-story Stone and Webster building which will occupy the entire west side of Broadway from Bridge to Stone-st.

Miss Herron, who some months ago obtained her first job with the firm of Cross & Cross, resolutely made up her mind to become an architect when she was still in her teens. She is one of the youngest draftsmen employed by her firm and is one of six women draftsmen, who, according to Thomas Bell, their directing chief, are doing exactly the same kind of work as their male co-workers.

Miss Herron is a petite girl, with dark, bobbed hair, and a boyish swing to her walk, and a face that is as fresh and smiling as a flower.

Along with her masculine workers, she has toiled as long as 12 and 15 hours a day to complete the rush job on the Stone and Webster building.

Kohler and Schneider Among Speakers at Door-co Program

BY W. F. WINSEY

Sturgeon Bay—Approximately 10,000 people greeted Gov. Walter J. Kohler, Congressman George Schneider and H. R. Holant, president of the Door County Historical Association, who were the principal speakers Sunday at the dedication of the Robert La Salle County Park, town of Clay Banks, Door county, on the shore of Lake Michigan. After the dedication, the short course graduates of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture continued the speaking and musical parts of their program. County Agent P. F. Huey, George Briggs of the College of Agriculture and County Agent H. J. Henry were the speakers.

"I hope you people here and your descendants will enjoy this community park for all time," Gov. Kohler said in his dedication talk.

"I am very much interested in the action of the Door County Board of supervisors and the Door County Historical society Association that gives to the people of the county this community park," declared the governor.

"This park one of the most beautiful spots on Lake Michigan is located in the cradle of Wisconsin history. Twenty-six years after Jamestown was settled, Nicolet was in this vicinity. The history of this vicinity is, therefore, almost as old as that of Virginia.

"You are here today as planners in the dedication of a county park for the amusement and recreation of the people of your community," said Congressman Schneider. # Salt Law Violators Fill Numerous Jails In India

Bombay —(CP)— Law breakers of the salt laws in India are still being sent to jail almost daily in various parts of the country.

Hundreds were arrested soon after Mahatma Gandhi made his spectacular march to the sea, inaugurating his civil disobedience campaign which is aimed to bring about the independence of India.

The prisons became crowded, thousands of other persons having been arrested for various civil disobedience offenses, and the courts have been jammed for weeks.

Gandhi, close to break the salt laws in the first place because he considered the salt tax humiliating to the national consciousness of an awakened India and because, as he stated in his weekly, the "Satyagrah," was being hit by the very porters in the land.

Soon after the end of the World War the government of India decided to double the salt tax as a means of balancing the budget.

One British editor in condemning the salt tax monopoly pointed out that it had been calculated that more than 100 million people living below the poverty line of subsistence, there could hardly be expected to pay more than a few pence for salt as a condiment.

In India's uneducated classes have profound respect for the law and it was Gandhi's desire to upset the mental balance by a demonstration of wholesale breaking of the laws. That was the real object of Gandhi in making the long, arduous trip to the shores of the Indian ocean in order to attempt the manufacture of salt contrary to government regulations.

Some of Gandhi's followers, who traveled about the country speaking in villages as a means of stimulating interest in the passive resistance movement, accused the British of being the first to impose a salt tax in India. The government refuted these statements, which had been given wide publicity by the Nationalist congress party, the authorities contending that the salt tax in India dates back to very earliest times, having long been in effect when the British gained control nearly 200 years ago.

Mention of the salt tax is made in the Shastras, or Hindu scriptures, the government statement read, and the tax was levied by the Mogul emperors who made so much out of it that the duty was more than double the cost of production.

This condiment, as a universal human necessity, has always provided revenue for rulers. In the day of William III the salt duty in Great Britain was about $3 a barrel, or twenty-three times its cost originally.

Our Children

By Angelo Patri

CANTANKEROUS YOUTH

"What is to be done with a sixteen-year-old boy who is earning his own living, staying at home with his grandmother and his aunt, and doing exactly what he pleases? The worst of it is that he goes out about twice a week and stays out until after midnight and refuses to tell where he has been. Should not a boy of this age tell his people where he is going and what he intends to do?"

Suppose he did tell. What good would it do? If he told the truth and shocked his family, what good would that do? If they told him to stay home, he would walk out as usual. If he told a lie and he would be very likely to do so, what possible good would that do?

You see, when a boy reaches the age of adolescence and self-support it is a bit late to begin throwing the safeguards of home about him. All that has to be done when the boy is a dependent, helpless, searching child. He will take instruction and advice, but he will never learn the wisdom of it until he is on his own.

There is out of the question. You cannot force a boy or a girl to give you his confidence and to respect your judgment. And you expect an adolescent to be able to sustain himself, do you not? If a boy or girl of that age has not been trained to self-control and self-sufficiency, what is to be done to it?

It is the nature of children to grow up, to become self-sustaining and independent persons, away from home. A child is going away from home from the day he is born. That is as it should be and our training should take that into consideration. But when he definitely cuts loose from home, and he is not self-sufficient, try to be him to some good man or woman who understands and who can help.

Don't make the mistake of trying to force things. Don't intercept mail, read notes not intended for you, try to intrude into the young person's affairs. That is a sure way to drive him away from you. Drop all disciplinary notions. Treat this child as what he is, a person. If he wants help he will ask for it and if you can do it to content your soul in patience, and hope (Copyright, 1930, by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

The Story of Sue

by MARGERY HALE

© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

AS Mr. Merryman called to Sue that a messenger boy had brought a night letter for her, she jumped up quickly. Then, remembering her reddened eyes and tear-swollen face, she switched off the light. When she went to the door to receive the letter her face was half hidden in the shadows and she made her voice sound sleepy.

"A night letter? For me? Who in the world would have anything so important to say to me that the glad news couldn't wait?"

The words were light but she knew very well from whom the letter had come. At least, she had hoped so strongly that it had come from Jack that it seemed to her that her prayer had been so intense, so ardent, so freighted with disappointment that an answer had to come. With the yellow envelope in her fingers she sat down on the floor, suddenly weak. She was almost afraid to read it. New doubts and worries came flooding.

Why hadn't Jack called her? Why had he waited to send this? Did he have something to tell her that he dreaded to say face to face? An icy coldness gripped her. It seemed to flow through her veins, blotting out the warm red blood. Had he... could he have... oh surely not... but had he been talked into making up with Barbara and marrying her that night?

She put the telegram down quickly then, almost afraid to touch it, as though its vibrant yellow was charged with electrical currents.

Downstairs she heard her mother calling to her father, asking if he had locked the back door and if the gas was turned out in the kitchen store to keep the water from freezing... simple, homely tasks that always before Sue had viewed with tender amusement, wondering if their very monotony didn't bore her parents. Now the old questions caught new meaning. Even a commonplace favor such as seeing if the back door was locked and the gas turned low could be a gallant service if performed by the man whom she loved! If Jack... her whole heart put itself into the cry.

Then she picked up the envelope, tore the flap with unsteady fingers, and read:

"Dear Sue: 'Did you know that your telephone is out of order? I have been trying to call you for an hour... but the telephone company won't cooperate. Now I'll see if the telegraph service is doing its daily good deed.'"

Sue looked up and caught her breath so quickly that it hurt. Then he had tried to get her! He hadn't forgotten! Her lips parted in a smile. It was such a homely announcement to bring such relief. The mention that a telephone line was out of order!

Anyway, her fear of a reconciliation with Barbara had been a bad nightmare. The world swung back to a saner, surer, happier pace again. She forgot that she had expected a personal call at first. After the memory of her long minutes of agony when she had thought Jack had gone away without thinking of her, the night letter came as balm from Gilead... as something very rare and precious. She picked up the letter and read on.

NEXT: Jack's letter.

My Neighbor Says--

If your couch hammock looks shabby, buy inexpensive cretonne and cover the hammock inside and out. Take the ropes out of the corners, also those at the ends. Where the eyelets come, cut a hole in the cretonne and sew close to the eyelets or button holes over the eyelets.

If your rubber hot-water bottle leaks do not have it mended. Dry it out thoroughly and use it for a hot salt bag. To heat the salt put it in a pan in the oven. When thoroughly heated pour it into the bag.

To dye lace the Arabian color, make a strong tea, dip the lace and dry it until it is the desired shade. The lace will be soft and the tea will not harm it.

Never throw away bones left from a roast or shoulder. Put them on in cold water, and if cooked several hours, a very good soup may be obtained with the addition of diced vegetables.

Flapper Fanny Says:

The present excessive use of cosmetics proves that women are making up for lost time.

Why Are You Late

I was lunching in a department store. I had noticed a man waiting about for more than half an hour. Suddenly a girl dashed up. "Well," she said airily to the waiting man, "you know I am always late. I never am on time!"

"This is positively the last time I'll ever wait for you," he said coldly. "If I had been an express train, you would have been on time."

And that precisely sums up the situation of most of us who are never on time.

We are not on time because we do not object to keeping other people waiting. If it is anything vital to our happiness or convenience—a train to be caught or a bargain to be had—we manage to turn up on the minute.

The person who is really constitutionally devoid of a sense of time is in another class. Their lateness inconveniences them as much as it does others. They really do lose trains and miss bargains!

Ask the average woman who is habitually late how many times she has missed trains and she will usually tell you with pride that she never missed a train in her life. Of course not! She knows trains won't wait for her!

Not being on time is nothing more than a form of egotism with most of us.

Some of us are late because we do not like to wait for others. We want to make sure the other person will get there first.

Others of us are carried away by the interests of the moment and forget the person who is waiting for us.

The worst type is the woman who is late because either consciously or unconsciously she thinks it will increase her own importance. She is staging an effect! She likes the picture of herself (as she sees it) watched and waited for—the last to arrive. The star part and a good entrance is what she is after. It is very cheap and obvious—but as long as people wait for her she will continue in the delusion of her own importance and effect.

It is unusual to find a man late for his appointments—partly because business life has trained him to a better sense of responsibility, also because custom and etiquette decree that he is less easily pardoned, but largely because he seldom has this particular form of egotism.

Hints For The Shopper

Beach robes come in many fabrics, some of them piece-dyed to get the color effects which yarn dyes cannot give. However, whereas yarn dyes usually are the best for most textile products, piece-dyed beach robes cost more because of the difficulty of dyeing and also because of the effects created.

The value of terry robes usually can be determined by the closeness of the pile, the closer the pile the better the robe. Mercerized thread is sometimes put into the yarn to give it more sheen and more value. Terry robes are yarn-dyed. They should be full-cut, loose in the armholes. Some manufacturers skimp on material by grading the robes one or two sizes too small.

Patine cloth robes look somewhat like terry, but they have no pile. All-wool flannel robes should not be washed; they should be dry-cleaned.

Filling 15,369* Market Baskets

Each week day it is our exclusive privilege to go into more than fifteen thousand homes in this territory. We reach the eyes and minds of the active buyers for these families. This simple deduction follows: we enable our advertisers to fill those market baskets.

Post-Crescent superiority makes this newspaper the only effective medium for reaching all of this territory. Post-Crescent exclusiveness simplifies the advertiser's problem by giving him one publication which alone covers Appleton and the surrounding district.

In editorial content (news, features, etc.) the Post-Crescent ranks with newspapers in much larger centers, a large factor in the intense reader-interest. Editorial fearlessness and independence, have made this newspaper one of the most discussed institutions in the territory.

Post-Crescent is almost as necessary as tonight's evening meal. We are sure of this, for if tonight's copy of the Post-Crescent be missing from a subscriber's porch, an insistent call comes flashing over our switchboard! "WHERE IS MY PAPER?"**

Those interested readers have increased on the average of eight hundred and thirty seven each year, from the original 7,200 to the present figure of 15,369. Eight hundred and thirty seven new market baskets each year to be filled by the consistent, wise advertiser.

We do not claim to be revealing a startling new secret. Alert advertisers have already seen the increasing drawing-power of the Post-Crescent, have used it to advantage. From a total of 287,169 inches in 1920 they increased to 505,061 in 1929. This year, also, shows a marked increase.

IGHT PLANES IN AIR STUNTS THRILL NEW LONDON CROWD

Interesting Program Given as Part of Legion Demonstration

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—A crowd of motorists along the highway early Sunday morning for the much heralded exhibition of aircraft scheduled to appear here as part of the all day demonstration staged by the Veterans Post of the American Legion. The four of the planes was staged on a temporary airport on the Scheidt farm, north of the city as a part of the Wisconsin State Legion air race. A variety of circumstances prevented the advertised number of planes from appearing. Only eight were present to take part in the program. Soon after 11 o'clock three of the planes appeared, the small orange monoplane bearing the name "New London" coming in soon afterward. This plane later was dedicated by Miss Marjorie Zang, a New London girl, who looked into the cockpit and wished a bottle of champagne for the pilot of the plane which in its race with others to the state capital may bring prestige to the city whose name it bears.

Storms prevented a number of the planes from attending the meet here, but much interest attended the appearance of the tri-motored aircraft piloted by "Thunder" Johnson. This a mammoth cabin plane with seating capacity for twelve passengers is the first of its kind to appear here. It made a number of passenger flights and also took part in the program of stunts. The parachute jumper was unable to be here, so that this portion of the day program was canceled. An air race, a bombing exhibition and any number of thrilling air stunts kept the ground patrol, made up of Legionnaires and Boy Scouts occupied in keeping the landing field clear and the lanes of travel open to traffic.

The airfield was located some distance off highway 26 where motorists insisted upon parking and obstructing the thoroughfare. At one time congestion was so complete that no cars could move. Motorcycle Officer Macklin, working the entire line of a mile or more, finally got the parked cars into the main artery and as a result there were no accidents throughout the day.

The day's events closed on Sunday night with a skydivers' dance at the Maple Grove pavilion.

AUTO PRODUCERS RESUME ACTIVITY

Seven Michigan Plants Resume Operations, Ending Holidays
Special Dispatch to the Post-Crescent
Detroit—(CPA)—Five automobile producers have resumed factory operation this week following vacation shutdowns that have become general throughout the industry this year. This lengthens to seven the list of Michigan plants that have resumed operations — Ford, Oakland, Packard, Graham-Paige, Cadillac, Hudson and Timken-Detroit axle. Oldsmobile and Hupmobile have fortnight holidays in progress and are scheduled to start again within a few days.
Because it ordinarily required from one to two weeks to regain the same volume as at the time of shutdown, the plants are resuming at lower rates of operation than before. They cannot be expected to show normal output under the prevailing conditions until the final week of August or Sept. 1.
Summer vacations in the present form are new to the auto industry, but only in a partial sense. In other years when active has been normal the factories were never able to make complete shutdowns of all departments at one time. Instead they resorted to a "staggered" plan whereby holiday periods were allowed to one or two departments at a time and were extended over the months of both July and August as circumstances permitted.

YOU
"Leo"

If August 12th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 6 p. m. to 9:30 p. m. and 10:30 p. m. to 11:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 6 a. m. to 7 a. m. and 1 p. m. to 2 p. m.

An unfortunate morning is predicted for this date, time will be wasted, and energies used wrongly, quarrels, contention and misunderstandings. Do not act in haste. Do not look for trouble unless you know what to do with it when you find it.

Children born on this August 12th will have considerable natural refinement, will be given a great amount of imitiveness, and a desire to study. They will have been perceptive faculties, and will be cheerful and sociable. They will be in sympathy with family and relatives.

You possess many of the finer attributes given to persons born under the above sign. You love the things of day light, and you scorn small and puny actions. You have a very open, frank and noble spirit. You have a quick temper when provoked, but your anger does not last long, and if you do not completely forego your reason, you take it in a generous and open way. You may possibly get angry over trifles, but you never hold grudges—you settle your scores at once, and that ends them as far as you are concerned. You have an abundance of energy, and an all consuming desire to do something, and to do it now—that is your complex. Your mind is never at rest except during your hours of sleep, and even then you have interesting and sometimes worrying dreams. Whatever you do, you do well, although you have a rapid mind and rapid fingers. Your very walk indicates that you are an energetic and ambitious person. You carry undertakings to their end, even at great personal risk. Wealth will come to you by personal merit and work, and also by relations, or by favor of rich patrons. Losses may occur through bad health or family troubles. You have the capacity of making friends easily, and you seldom feel alone, even in strange lands or with strange peoples. You have strong passions, well under control. Your enemies will have slight powers to hurt you.

PAIR WITH "OMNIBUS COLLEGE" IS MARRIED

New York—(AP)—The 370 members of the "omnibus college" of southwestern, College Winfield, Ka. had a bride and bridegroom among their number today as a result of the marriage here of Miss Lillian Crum-packer of McPherson, Kas. a student, and Roland Jones, one of the instructors.

The marriage was performed at the Church of the Transfiguration, better known as the Little Church Around the Corner. The ceremony was planned before the tour started and was witnessed by the entire touring student body. The couple will continue with the tour.

DIM PROSPECT OF MORE STEEL DEMAND

No Tendency to Firm Up
Seen in Finished Steel Process

Special Dispatch to Post-Crescent
Pittsburg—(CPA)—During the week no light was thrown on the difficult question of whence an increase in steel demand would come. That there was no satisfactory answer was long ago admitted, and those who predicted an increase fell back upon seasonal precedent and hopes of a revival in general business.

Isolation cases of improvement are reported, but they do not bear analysis in the sense of being found to be typical or suggestive that the same causes may work elsewhere. From Chicago, for instance, comes a report of improvement, but its chief basis is some large export orders for tractors and the ending of vacations at a number of automobile plants. Exports of farm implements, including tractors, underwent a large decrease in the last few months and a substantial increase would not restore conditions of early this year.

As to the automobile industry, the bare fact is that good news came out and proved to have little favorable effect. The resumption has occurred, and it was not preceded by any steel buying sufficient to make a visible impress upon steel production as a whole.

There is little doubt that the prolonged drought will lessen demand for farm implements and steel for farm use generally. There is also damage to canning crops, affecting the future of tin plate production, but this may easily be overestimated, for there is "general line" consumption of tin plate, not associated with crops. Some of the vegetable crops are already partly packed.

Finished steel prices show no tendency to firm up. If any market is reported steadier than formerly, i. e., with less cutting, the explanation probably is that current orders are too small to bring out special prices.

Last year nations of the world launched 50 per cent more cruisers and 300 per cent more were in process of building than in the twelve months preceding the World war.

Few Social Doings In Capital During Summer

BY DOROTHEA J. LEWIS
(Post-Crescent's Washington Society Editor)

Washington—The diplomatic corps which usually provides most of the gaiety of the national capital's summer, is unusually depleted this year. More and more of the foreign envoys are spending vacations in cooler places, particularly New England coast resorts. Last week was a particularly deserted time for Washington with many of the diplomats, who are remaining in town, away for most of the week, attending and taking part in the Summer Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia at Charlottesville, which officially began Monday.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles, formerly of Green Bay, drove to Philadelphia Saturday to accompany Dr. Marsh's mother, Mrs. Mae Marsh, part-way on her return to Chicago. Mrs. Marsh is a former resident of Omro, Wis., but is now living in Chicago. She has been visiting Dr. and Mrs. Marsh in Washington for little more than a month.

Before returning to her home, she will visit in Boston, New York and Toledo. In New York, she plans to go up into St. Lawrence County, in northern New York, near the lakes. This part of New York was the home of her family several generations ago and she is much interested in seeing it.

Dr. and Mrs. Marsh returned to Washington Sunday night.

Mrs. Joseph Davies, formerly of Madison, has returned to Wisconsin and will stay at Brule until October. After a short visit in Madison during the early part of the summer, Mrs. Davies went to Asheville, N. C., and has been there ever since, leaving Monday to go directly to Brule.

Despite the heat and 11 years of non-tennis playing, Mrs. William E. Noz, of Watertown, has been playing the strenuous and exciting game every morning for the last week. She is trying to regain the excellent game she played 11 years ago, which made her eligible to membership in the Washington Women's Tennis League and to play with the best men and women players of this city. When she feels really able to play again, she plans to teach her three youngsters, Ellen, 9, William, 8, and Natalie, 4, who is probably still just a little too young to do much damage with a racket.

Friends of Mrs. George Barnett, widow of Major General Barnett of Bocobal, commandant of the Marine Corps, are wondering if she will bring back many antiques and lovely things to add to the already fascinating collection in her home here. She now has a wonderful collection of antique costumes brought from China after a trip to the Orient when General Barnett was in charge of the Marine Corps guard of the United States Legation. She also has a collection of miniature silver and ivory ornaments which are very rare. Many other interesting articles from all parts of the world have been gifts to the General from his officers and each has its honored place in her home.

RAIN LIKELY IN DRY AREAS DURING WEEK

Weather Bureau Officials Uncertain as to Amount of Rainfall

Washington—(P)—A detailed report on drought damage, made up on information from each county in the affected states was before President Hoover today as he pushed forward preparation of plans for relief.

Returning early from his Virginia mountain lodge the chief executive devoted the morning to examination of the data which included the latest word from many county agents who reported over the weekend to the department of agriculture.

On the information contained in this summary will be based Mr. Hoover's recommendations to the governors of the affected states who will attend a White House conference on Thursday. Yesterday he learned the president would ask the governors to appoint one man from each of the twelve states represented to compose a rehabilitation commission. Also it developed Mr. Hoover did not as yet consider the situation one to require either a nationwide appeal for funds or the calling of a special session of congress.

Preliminary information from the reports led to the conclusion that distresses from the drought were realized and that no course existed for general alarm.

OBSERVE BIRTHDAY

The drought problem engaged the president's attention constantly over the weekend yielding only briefly to the celebration in quiet fashion of Mr. Hoover's fifty-third birthday. A cake bearing his full quota of candles and a few simple gifts presented at the Sunday dinner were Mr. Hoover's only departure from the routine of camp life. Secretary Hyde and Vice Chairman Starr of the farm board, conferred with him at length—the latter bringing his eye-witness report of conditions in Kentucky, southern Ohio and southern Indiana, where he had just visited.

Until the governors' conference takes place no further direct action for relief is contemplated. The president was satisfied with the Interstate Commerce Commission's authorization of railroad rate reductions for aiding movement of livestock, feed and water in the dry sections and the dropping of special rate reductions leaving it up to the railroads to act. Many already have prepared to do so.

Washington—(P)—The weather bureau today maintained its predictions for showers during the week and the possibility of a dry spell in the northwestern Minnesota, eastern and central North Dakota, western South Dakota, western Kansas and western Nebraska within the next 36 hours. These states however, do not need rain as badly as most of the Ohio valley but some alleviation there was expected by Wednesday or Thursday.

Shower also were predicted for Tuesday afternoon or night in western Kentucky.

The weather bureau officials were careful, however, to point out that the showers might not break the drought, or might even fail to materialize.

Rains which have fallen in widely scattered points in Tennessee, Kentucky and the plains states in the last 24 hours were lighter than hoped for. The temperature, however, over most of the country had changed from excessive heat into something approximating coolness.

HOOPER BACK ON JOB

President Hoover returned to the White House today from his weekend trip to his Virginia mountain camp and immediately resumed his study of drought developments.

Cold interest was centered on reports from county agents of the agriculture department showing the actual damage and relief needs in the 12 principal states affected.

Hoover also looked forward to the government crop reporter due late today for additional information on the extent of crop damage.

Hoover checked at the White House today the report of the twelve governors invited to a White House conference Tuesday, to map out a tentative plan of relief, had received directly they would be present. Hoover also sent representatives, Governor Weaver, Nebraska; Hamill, Iowa; and Peckard, Virginia, had not yet been expected to have representatives present.

Representative Lindbergh of Indiana, who is at the White House for the day, is a memorandum for the president showing eleven requests for aid to the drought-stricken states. Indiana parts were the products of a crop that has seriously damaged.

OUT FRIGHT IN INDIANA

Washington—(P)—A memorandum from the railroads had agreed to a plan to reduce freight rates on grain and other drought-stricken crops was before President Hoover today. Representatives of the railroads (Dem Ind.) had been taken the matter to the railroads at the suggestion of H. W. Seely, President of the Indiana Farm bureau, and that the railroads had agreed to a plan to reduce freight rates on grain and other drought-stricken crops was before President Hoover today.

START BUILDING EMPIRE BUILDING OF 102 STORIES

Structure of Alfred E. Smith's to Be Tallest in World

BY DONN SUTTON

New York—The black skeleton of a new mammoth of stone and steel, one-fifth higher than anything else ever built by man, is being reared on the Manhattan skyline.

Alfred E. Smith's Empire State Building, with its 102 stories, 1,250 passenger and freight elevators and its subterranean "business district," has begun its rise to a height of nearly a quarter of a mile above fashionable Fifth Avenue.

Crowned by a glass-encased mooring mast, supported by the largest steel columns ever molded, and erected upon New York's solid rock, this skyscraper will be opened next spring to 100,000 prospective tenants, to cruising dirigibles and to climbing sightseers.

FIVE FLOORS A WEEK

Measurable, approximately a floor a day, five floors a week, are being incorporated into the gigantic structure. The estimated cost, $35,000,000, will be paid in 1937 and 1938. An office near the site, former Governor Smith—president of Empire State, Inc.—watches progress on the $35,000,000 building through a pair of powerful binoculars.

The Empire State Building will be, literally, a city in the clouds, according to the plans of its owners and builders. It will be a metropolis within a metropolis, with stores and arcades in the first basement that would make it unnecessary for a tenant to leave the building in a lifetime so far as actual living wants are concerned.

More than 355,000 kilowatts of electricity will be consumed by Empire State every minute after it is completed and occupied. This is more than sufficient power to light all the houses and run the factories in the city of Bridgeport, Conn. There will be more than 350,000 25-watt lamps in the building—the largest aggregation of electric lights under one roof.

HAS OWN FIRE DEPARTMENT

Enough steel will be used in the skyscraper to build a standard size railroad from New York to Montreal and back. And the steel is being piled at the site, where a project is being undertaken by the building at the speed record now claimed by England.

Seventy-five miles of water pipe—enough to pipe water a distance of 20 miles into New York—have been ordered for the building. No structure is to be fireproof, but it will be 400 completely equipped fire stations within its walls, with a private maintenance corps of firemen, a fire alarm system similar to that used by the New York Fire Department, and several high pressure fire pumps capable of pumping water 1200 feet high.

PUT ON BOLD FRONT

At the age of 15, Derge ran away from home, landed a sailing vessel and visited Africa, Borneo, Australia and many foreign places. But it was not a pleasant life—existence before the mast was not to depend on one's ability to take a hooking from a lucky mate. So when the ship's deck with its luxurious freedom, Derge left the ship without regret and has been here ever since.

A Chinese storekeeper there had a daring outfit. Derge had been a bold front and the Chinaman ordered him to get out. That's how he got started—and he's been at it ever since.

Already the longing to return to the tropics has made itself felt and he, too, wishes to go. Derge has a book published. He happened to read of a newspaper publisher's search for a bold front. The publisher, George D. Derge, was a pearl diver and the suggestion of a book followed. He wrote a book called "The Bold Front" and it was published.

His book, "The Bold Front," was published by the Chicago Tribune. It was a success. Derge has been a bold front ever since.

He has been a bold front ever since. He has been a bold front ever since. He has been a bold front ever since.

The Coming of the "Jacketeers"

By Percy L. Crosby

DEAR SOOKY:

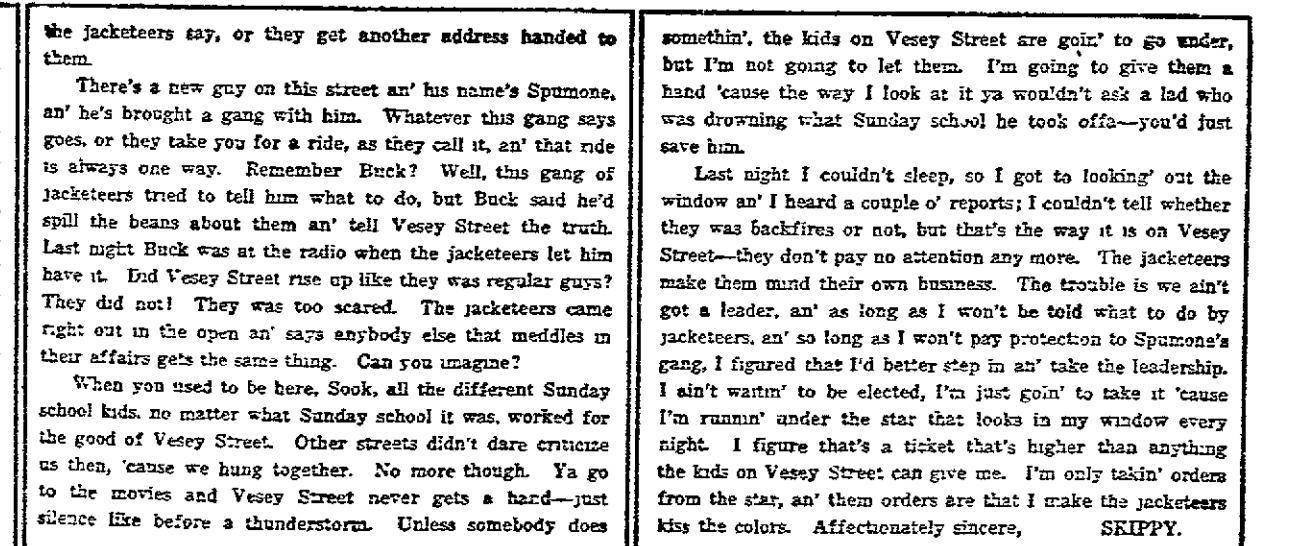

My heart feels like a cobbler-stone on account of the way Vesey Street is being run now. It's all so terrible that I'll have to wise it up your derby easy or you'd think I was slippin' you the chatter. You remember the time you could walk from one end o' Vesey Street to the other without bein' knocked down. In those days ya only had to call for the big cop on the corner an' he gave them a miff o' the law; he could do that 'cause the whole army an' navy was in back of him. The cop has to look the other way now since he ain't got the backing. I'll give you the real truth of how things are; one side o' the street thinks they're right, while the other side thinks they're right, an' they'd rather see the good old street knocked down before they'd think o' stretchin' out a helpin' hand to each other. A lot o' jacketeers knew that Vesey Street wasn't speakin', so what do they do but split through them an' run the whole street. The terrible part of it is that the Vesey Streeters now have to do what the jacketeers say, or they get another address handed to them.

There's a new guy on this street an' his name's Spumone, an' he's brought a gang with him. Whatever this gang says goes, or they take you for a ride, as they call it, an' that ride is always one way. Remember Buck? Well, this gang o' jacketeers tried to tell him what to do, but Buck said he'd spill the beans about them an' tell Vesey Street the truth. Last night Buck was at the radio when the jacketeers let him have it. Bud Vesey Street rise up like they was regular guys? They did not! They was too scared. The jacketeers came right out in the open an' says anybody else that meddles in their affairs gets the same thing. Can you imagine?

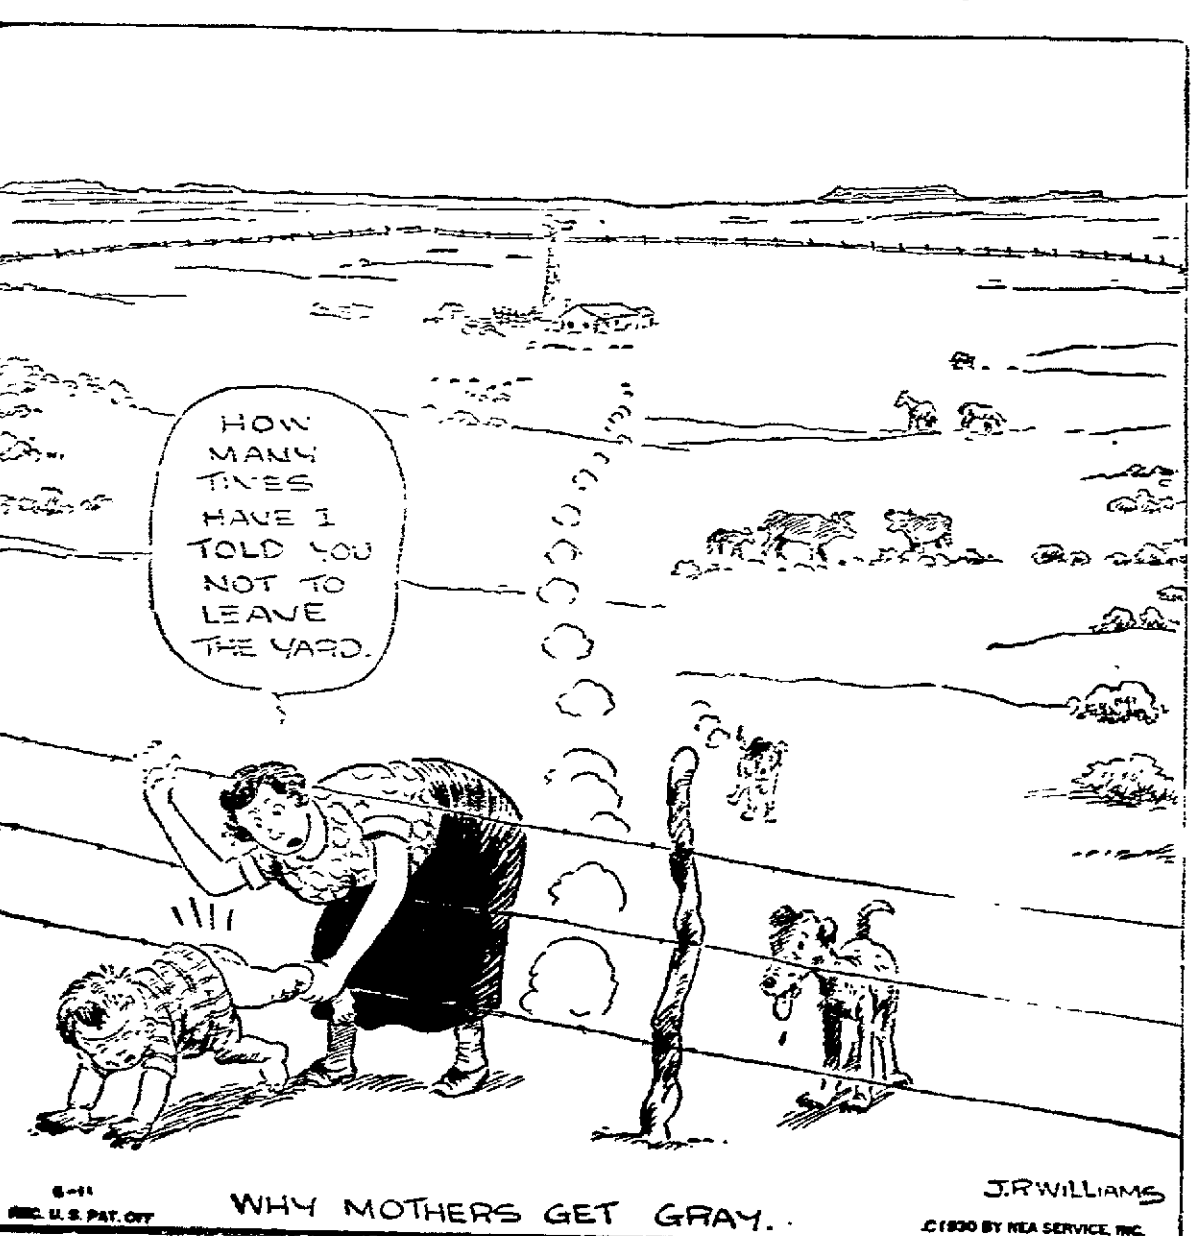

When you used to be here, Sooky, all the different Sunday school kids, no matter what Sunday school it was, worked for the good of Vesey Street. Other streets didn't dare criticize us then, 'cause we hung together. No more though. Ya go to the movies and Vesey Street never gets a hand - just silence like before a thunderstorm. Unless somebody does

A NICE GIRL COMES TO TOWN

By Mayne Greig

MARY LOU ARRIVES

RYNMOR WHITTAMORE paced impatiently on the station platform, waiting for the most wonderful girl in the world, or so he had thought last summer. It was winter now. What a difference those few months had made!

Mary Lou was on her way, definitely and unavoidably. She would arrive at any moment, full of enthusiasm and affection. And she would expect him to reciprocate. That was what annoyed Brynmor. How does a fellow greet a girl to ward whom he has turned cold?

Last summer Brynmor had thought he loved Mary Lou Leslie, and he hadn't hesitated to tell her so. His sisters recently had been cooler, much cooler, but the naive Mary Lou hadn't taken the hint.

Here was the holiday they had planned so eagerly — only last summer. What a lot had happened since then. A lifetime — Clarice! Brynmor couldn't think of Clarice Day without a breathless feeling that tightened the muscles in his throat. Clarice, with her fiery red hair and provoking half-shut amber eyes, affected men that way.

And now, within a few minutes, he must face Mary Lou.

"Idiot that I was!" Brynmor muttered. "Should have known a summer flirtation wouldn't last. Just a blue sky, a sea breeze and a girl — any girl, so long as she's pretty."

Mary Lou had been pretty in her fresh, unsophisticated way. But, oh, how green!

Why had this ghastly holiday ever been planned? Yet, Brynmor recalled, he had suggested it originally. Mary Lou had cousins in town; he had urged her to visit them. He would take her to London's best theaters, London's leading dances.

He stared moodily at the station ceiling, disgusted with the whole situation.

"Hello, Brynmor, were you expecting me to drop from the ceiling?"

He turned, startled. "Jove, Mary Lou!"

There she was, smiling uncertainly, flushed with embarrassment. Absentmindedly, he had forgotten to scan the passengers as they stepped from the train.

"Had a nice trip?" Brynmor reached for her dingy satchel.

"Fine."

There was an uncomfortable pause.

"Should I kiss her?" Brynmor thought. "Gosh, she's worse than I imagined. Where did she get that antiquated coat?"

The coat wasn't London. It proclaimed to the world its provincial origin. It was much too long.

"It's a great coat, you're here," Brynmor made another valiant effort as he halted a cab.

"Isn't it?" I've been so looking forward to it."

"I suppose your cousins will expect you to spend tonight with them," he barked as they drove toward Chelsea. "Too much to hope for any of your time this first night."

"W-h-y, I—I wrote and explained I was coming mainly to see you," Mary Lou faltered.

Mary Lou's cousin, Jay, lived in Chelsea. She had married Jerry Jerome, who worked on a morning newspaper. Jay, who kept a small, exclusive gown shop, made more money than Jerry did.

Neither Jay nor Jerry was home when Brynmor and Mary Lou arrived, but Jay had left a note explaining that both of them were working late that night. She apparently had assumed that Mary Lou would go out with Brynmor.

"I'll dash off and pick up a couple of seats for the theater," Brynmor said. "Be back for you in an hour. Is that O. K.?"

"Wonderful!" Mary Lou exclaimed, and Brynmor was gone so quickly that she was left bewildered.

"We're strange to each other," she mused. "But I'm sure it will be different when we've seen more of each other."

Yet she couldn't deny there was a difference between this Brynmor and her summer hero. He hadn't kissed her, hadn't even called her pet names as he used to — last summer.

"Wonderful!" she began. Then she shook her head stubbornly. "Nothing can possibly be wrong — not when I've counted so much on these two weeks in town."

TRAINED WORKERS TOO FEW TO FILL DEMAND

New York — There is an acute shortage of well-trained family social workers, says Ruth Hill, personnel director of the Family Welfare association.

Approximately 1559 will be needed next year and 6,000 in the next four years, but the available supply is inadequate to fill the demand, Miss Hill says.

Social work is now a specialized profession, says Miss Hill, and the worker must be trained to deal with problems of physical and mental health, education, vocational training, legal aid, etc., and have ability to teach household or business management.

WISCONSIN 15TH IN NUMBERS OF LICENSED PLANES

State Has 16 Largest Number of Pilots; 24th in Mechanics

(Post-Crescent Wash. Bureau)
Washington—Wisconsin was fifteenth among all the states and possessions of the United States in the number of its licensed and identified aircraft, seventeenth in the number of its pilots and twenty-fourth in mechanics, a survey made by the Aeronautics Branch of the Department of Commerce reveals.

The Badger State, on June 30, 1930, had a total of 229 licensed or identified planes. Of this total, 152 were licensed and 77 identified. Only aircraft which has been licensed by the Department of Commerce is listed as "licensed," and those listed as "identified" are aircraft not licensed but having identification marks.

Wisconsin's total number of pilots was 245. Of this number, 89 were transport pilots, 54 holders of limited commercial licenses and 102 owners of private licenses. Wisconsin had no industrial pilots. Its mechanics numbered 89.

California led in all three respects, with 1,275 licensed and identified aircraft, 2,515 pilots and 1,658 mechanics. New York held second place.

The survey revealed that there were 9,773 licensed and identified aircraft, 13,041 licensed pilots of all classes and 8,843 mechanics in the United States. Alaska, Hawaiian Islands, Porto Rico, Canal Zone and the Philippine Islands on June 30, 1930.

Of the total number of pilots, over 43 per cent were holders of private licenses, while over 41 per cent were transport pilots, 14.42 per cent limited commercial and only 1.02 per cent industrial.

There was a total of 261 women pilots in the United States at the time of the survey. Of this total, 29 held transport pilot licenses, 34 limited commercial, 1 industrial and 296 private pilot licenses. There were four women mechanics.

States surpassing Wisconsin in their total number of licensed and identified planes were California, 1,275; Illinois, 790; Indiana, 240; Kansas, 418; Massachusetts, 247; Michigan, 518; Missouri, 455; Nebraska, 234; New Jersey, 297; New York, 1,148; Ohio, 578; Oklahoma, 317; Pennsylvania, 455; and Texas, 481.

Those with more pilots include California, 2,515; District of Columbia, 256; Florida, 267; Illinois, 744; Indiana, 255; Kansas, 269; Massachusetts, 360; Michigan, 533; Missouri, 454; New Jersey, 321; New York, 1,303; Ohio, 630; Oklahoma, 323; Pennsylvania, 522; Texas, 632; and Washington, 25.

The Badger State's mechanics are outnumbered in the following states: California, Connecticut, District of Columbia, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Texas, Virginia and Washington.

MANY INDIANS ARE SUFFERING WITH T. B.
Madison—(AP)—Lack of pastoral instincts among Wisconsin's Indian population is attributed by Dr. C. A. Harper, state health officer, as the fundamental reason for the widespread conditions of disease.

A recent survey of Indians in northern Wisconsin showed 14 per cent were suffering from tuberculosis, he reports, and a social study brought to light the lack of gardens, poultry, and cows.

From 307 Indian families, it was found that dogs outnumbered cows, 99 to 89, while there were only 291 chickens owned by the 745 members of the families.

milk products in their diet, and there is reported to be a tendency to underfeeding. There is no reason why every Indian family should not have a vegetable garden that would furnish a proper supply of vegetables.

He believes with proper nutrition and proper housing tuberculosis could be substantially reduced.

Washington—Other major problems of flying being solved, or partially solved, most of the attention of aviation circles now is being devoted to perfection of blind flying, or flying through fog. This is fast being solved through work being carried on by the U. S. Bureau of Aeronautics, Bureau of Standards, and Marine Corps, according to the U. S. Department of the Navy.

SUBWAY HAS COST CITY $33,266.98

Sale of Acquired Property Would Cut Cost to $25,000 Report Shows

The total cost of the E. Wisconsin subway to the city of Appleton is $33,266.98, according to figures compiled by Mayor John Goodland, Jr., and released Saturday.

And deducting real estate which the city acquired in the construction of the subway, and estimated at $8,000, the ultimate cost of the subway, on sale of the property, would be a trifle over $25,000.

The Chicago and Northwestern Railway company carried the largest burden in construction of the subway, its share of the $123,395.31 total being $59,949.54. The city of Appleton paid $33,266.98, the state of Wisconsin $27,276.99 and the town of Grand Chute $2,902.50.

Paving and grading was the largest item in the part of the project paid for by the city and state, the report shows. Simpson Parker company, contractors, having the job received $26,690.70 for their work. The retaining wall cost $3,556.55, and the storm sewer $2,531.84.

Property damages were a large item in erecting the subway. A Weisgerber receiving $10,250 for his

New American Ships To Outclass "Leviathan"

New York —(AP)— A $30,000,000 shipbuilding program, designed to give America supremacy on the rich North Atlantic ocean trade routes, has been launched by the United States Lines.

In 1929 this country stood seventh among the world's shipbuilding nations. Then Paul W. Chapman, who was born on an Illinois farm and never had crossed the ocean, decided to go into the shipping business.

He bought the United States Lines for $18,990,000 from the government. A policy of expansion, encouraged by the Jones-White bill, which provides government aid for shipbuilding and operation, went into effect. Now America has more merchant ship tonnage under construction than any country except Great Britain and Ireland.

Contracts already are signed for the first two units of the United property; H. H. Brockhaus $3,500; W. Van Wyk, $1,000; A. Horn, $7,000; and Market Garden company, $1,000. Other items of expenditure were side walk $32,37; drainage tops $122; lighting system for center pier $59; engineering supervision and inspection $1,200. There was an additional charge of $5,510.50 for hauling dirt to the Lawrence-st. tunnel.

tonnage of $0,000. Each will accommodate 1,300 passengers. These ships, to be launched in 1932, will be similar in design to the Leviathan, but will have two funnels instead of three. Their interiors will be even more luxurious than the present flagship of the American merchant marine.

In keeping with an agreement with the shipping board at the time the line was purchased from the government, the United States Lines program also includes plans for construction of two super ships of more than 45,000 tons displacement, with a speed of about 30 knots. Their cost is tentatively placed at about $35,000,000 apiece.

We're telling you what your coal will cost now. No one can tell you what it will cost this winter. Those prices depend entirely on supply of coal on hand; on the absence of strikes and mine difficulties and the degree of transportation facilities.
